Dear Sir:

This being the season of good will, I wondered if I could impose on you. I have heard that your state prides itself in taking care of your own. Would you be kind enough to write in your paper stories about the mentally ill or retarded?

Seeing as your State has many Mental Hospitals and Clinics, also Nursing Homes and Orphanages, I think it would be a wonderful gesture on your part to write stories about the patients who are in these places to win the sympathy of the people so that they would visit them during this season.

Please write an appeal to the people of your State to send their used books, Bibles, records, games, etc., to the mental hospital, orphanage, or convalescent home nearest them.

The mental hospitals could use the books in their libraries and in Occupational Therapy groups. They would be greatly apprecIated cares.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Background Scripture: II Timothy 2:1 through 3:9, 14-17.
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 40: 6-11.

Workman

Lesson for November 15, 1964

A soldier, an athlete, a farmer: what do they have in common? They are all masculine, for one thing. They are strong and active; they do often what is unpleasant or even dangerous at the time. And they all are valuable to the society in which they live.

It is interesting that the author of II Timothy does not liken Christian men to angels, students, members of an audience, or women no matter how good. He sees in the soldier, the athlete, and the farmer symbols of what the Christian is intended to be. Christian life is a battle; it is a game (played seriously as games should be); it is making a crop. Hence the Christian is said to be soldier, athlete and farmer. The Christian life in short is a doing life, a working life. The Christian knows what not everyone knows; he thinks and says what most people do not either think of, or say. But above all and with it all he is Christian is a doer.

For Every Good Work

This little letter to Timothy was written to a preacher by a preacher. Then why read it if I'm not a preacher? Well, it's more than a matter of looking over Paul's or Timothy's shoulder to see what preachers talk about when they are by themselves. Paul speaks of the man of God. (And if you, layman or not, don't think you are God's man, then whose man are you?) Paul speaks of equipping the Christian for every good work. Now the work of a preacher is not the work of the housewife, not the work of the scientist or the business man. But if the church had thought that Paul was writing for one preacher and for no one else, they never would have preserved the letter and eventually put it into the Bible. "Every good work" means EVERY good work — what we do for a living and what we do for others in our off hours — whatever any man does that is good.

The Well-Equipped Workman

There never yet was a workman, professional or do-it-yourself type, who couldn't improve his work by using better tools. Now the tool or tools for the Lynchburg Church's good work is nothing less than the Bible. The better a man learns to use his Bible, to understand it and to live by it, the better his workmanship will be.

Don't and Do

How the Bible operates is shown in one of the best-known and often quoted sentences in the letters to Timothy. First of all Paul says it is inspired. That is, the Bible's power does not lie in its literary polish nor in any of the qualities that go to make what we call a strong book. The power of the Bible is the power of God who speaks through it. Paul says further that it is a teaching book — he does not call it mainly a preaching book. As a teaching book, it works in two ways. First is "reproof." A sincere reader of the Bible will come to thoughts—in parables, poems, stories, letters —which pierce his armor of self-satisfaction and bring him up short. For the Bible brings in many ways the judgment of God on many of man's cherished ways and cherished delusions. It is like a red light above a highway that says STOP!

But the Bible does much more than show us what is wrong with us; it shows what the right way is. The Bible was not written by or for people on a tropical island who can live ideal lives without running into restance. The Bible was written by men who knew what it is to try to live a good life in a bad world. If the Bible did nothing else for us, it would be priceless for the inside stories of men "of like passions with ourselves," who in the midst of an uncertain and sin-infested world, were able to live above and through it all as sons and daughters of the Most High. For God's book brings God's life to God's men.

Appomattox Seventh-day Adventist Church

Sabbath, Nov. 7, we were again privileged to have with us Elder Ernest Clark, pastor of the Lynchburg Park Ave., Adventist Church as guest speaker for the 11 o'clock Worship Service. Subject "The Life That Counts" Scripture texts St. John 1:45, 46, Phillip findeth Nathanael and saith unto him, We have found him whom Moses in the law and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth the son of Joseph." V 46 "And Nathanael said unto him Can any good thing come out of Nazareth Phillip saith unto him Come and see." It was from this little wicked city that Jesus came and because of divers opinions concerning him and the enemity of the Pharisees they sought to kill him Pastor Clark read John's testimony of Christ as he taught in the temple in John 7:3,4. "His b·ethern therefore said unto him depart hence and go into Judea that thy disciples also may see the works that thou doest," or there is no man that doeth anything in secret and he himself seeketh to be known openly. If those do these things shew thyself to the world." "Then came the officers to the chief priests and Pharisees and they said unto them, Why have ye not brought him? The officers answered, never a man spake like this man." John 7:45, 46.

Elder Clark mentioned Isaiah, Amos and Esther of the old testament, also John, Peter and Paul and others who we·e called of God and when they obeyed the call like Isiah, who saw the Lord, he then saw himself and cried out Woe is me: for I am undone, I am a man of unclean lips." Isah 6:5 (first part). They all saw the need of self improvement, after becoming accurate of the high calling of God". lives that counted for Him. Like Jesus they gave their best their all.
